Tueſday, July 24. 1683.

WHereas one Thomas Fox Bookſeller of Weſtminſter, has publiſhed an Advertiſement, inſinuating, as if that Speech and Paper of my Lord Ruſſell's Printed by me, was not true; and doth pretend to publiſh a more perfect one, together with the Speeches of Walcot, Hone and Rouſe in Five Sheets ſold for Six Pence,

This is to give Notice,

That the ſaid Speech and Paper of my Lord Ruſſell's, were Printed from his own Copy, and ſent to the Preſs by his *L*ady; and that which he delivered to the Sheriffs, is only a Copy of the ſame, as will appear by comparing.

And further, That ſince my Propriety is invaded by Mr. Fox, notwithſtanding timely Notice given him, by my Entry in the Hall-Book, and by my Printing my Name to it, and alſo by *L*etter ſent to himſelf: Therefore, I intend to Print and Publiſh all the aforeſaid Speeches by to Morrow Morning to be ſold for Three Pence.

JOHN DARBY.
